No. 1"—may be the child had got no name—was adorned merely with a stoppered nursing bottle.

The nursing bottle.

The nursing bottles seemed to be of all things the most frequent decoration of the graves—certainly the most pitiful. As a rule they were partly filled with mud washed into them by the storms. But they were not by any means the only kind of bottles to be notified on the mounds. Medicine bottles were there in plenty—chough, indeed, to supply an apothecary's shop with glassware. As dwell as could be discovered, it was much the fashion to place on a grave all the medicine bottles emptied by the deceased during the last and fatal illness.

Thus one was enabled to surmise at a glance whether or not the sickness had been very long or complicated. Some graves would have only two or three bottles, while others would make a showing of as many as fifteen. Many of the medicine bottles on the other hand were hardly full.

Sometimes you can best show what a thing is by showing what it is not, or what it will do by what it will not do. A "Help Wanted" "WANT" in THE WORLD will not bring you the sort of people pictured above. It is the Wantto-Get-Ahead Class that reads The Lawrer-There is no hand so dear to me World. It is this class that wants good belp and it is this class that makes good help. Those who advertise in The World for PLACES souncer or My holds an acc high royal flush. THE WORLD for PLACES sooner or later advertise in THE WORLD for BELP. To give everybody a start in life The World has made Mondays and Saturdays Half-Rute Situation Days, and on these days charges but 10 cents per line for "Help" "WANTS" and but 5 cents per line for "Situation" Wants and but 5 cents per line for "Situation" was seen and seek according to the first one-from the but 5 cents per line for "Situation" while mine were on the first one-from the record. 305 HELP. STOLEN RHYMES Procrastination. In the dim conservatory, in the lampinght's soltened slory, There I sought the old, old story To confess.

But my secret I'd not let her Learn too quickly; I'd not better importune that I might get her To say yee. For she might think me unguly if I hastened on unduly. Though her heart desiring truly To possess. "Had she quite snjoyed the dancing. Found the music most entrancing the Asked I; shyly at me giancing She said yes.

Then I spoke about the weather; Did she fize it cold, or whether Cold and warm mixed up together In a mess? "Cold or warm, or calm or breeze, or So it really didn't freeze hor !" "Any kind," I asked, " would please her?" She said Yes.

" Did she think love out of fashion? Did she nouth the tender passion?" Thus I gently put the lash on My sudress. Then a point I sought to carry;
As a maluen should she tarry,
Or should she at some time marry?
She said les. Then her eyelids drooped a moments I know what the action slow means; By it she had not a No means To express. Had she ever meditated Over her friends arready mated. And the life that her awaited? Site said Yes.

"Parling," said I, "I adore you! Tell me quickly, I implore you. As I'm kneeling here before you; Will you hiese!"— Then a sound made me look up, or I'd have kept right on: Twas Inopers He said: 'Will you so to supper!'
